

KEIG- JULY 2025 PROJECT UPDATE:

The Vocation skilling and education for girls' project that started as a dream, came true in response to struggles young mothers and vulnerable girls face. "It is a project that's so close to my heart" Said Clare Nabirye- The ED KEIG. Over the years, it has grown from a dream into a powerful engine of empowerment, now running in 2 districts and impacting over 100 young people. This project has trained and empowered a generation of changemakers who have gone out to start their initiatives that are now transforming their families and communities with purpose and impact.

Looking back to the one full year since Kisakye Educational Initiative for Girls (KEIG) received additional vocation training equipment from Tools With A Mission (TWAM), it is a clear testament of the partnership value.

Partnerships are how we scale purpose into real impact. Because real change doesn't happen in isolation — it's built through collaboration, shared values, and a deep commitment to communities.

Through partnerships with TWAM and the Mindset Development Organization, we've been able to reach further, and impact real lives — empowering young mothers and girls to make informed decisions and champion their rights.

Grateful to every partner who continues to believe in this work. Together, we're not just shifting narratives, we're shaping futures.
